The first shot, the captain's report declares, was fired when the submarine was three miles distant. The captain immediately stopped the ship, he says, but the submarine continued to shell the liner.

The captain, without delay, orderupon which, he declares, the submarine turned all her guns, killing and wounding many persons, both in the boats and on deck of the steamer.

Passengers who sought to save themselves by clutching the sides of the submarine, were pushed away with jeers and insults, he asserts.

London, Nov. 12 .- A bitter attack on Lord Kitchener was made in the house of commons by Arthur Lyrca, Nationalist member for West Clare. Lynch accused Lord Kitchener of having blundered in not moving to the defense of Liege, in the question of the munitions output and most recently in Serbia. Lynch urged that Sir John French, the commander in chief, together with 60 per cent of higher British commanders, be shelv ed. His assertion concerning Sir John French was that the latter, although in command for the last fifteen months, "had made no progress." He raid a questionable compliment to Winston Churchill by saying: #The blunder in the Dardanelles was at least the blunder of a man who meant to do something."

Replying to a member from Scotland, Premier Asquith said that Earl Kitchener had not tendered his resignation as secretary for war.

Fast Game on Local Gridiron Is Taken By Washington High School Team - Despite Lighter Weight Local Stars Successfully Force Through Lines for Touchdowns.

The Washington High school eleven proved too strong and too resourceful for the London High on the local gridiron Thursday afternoon. In a game replete with brilliant plays the local team was returned the victor by a score of 12 to 0.

Despite the greater aggregate weight in the visiting team the local line up proved sufficient to stop all attempts to buck the Washington High line. Comparatively little gain was made by the visitors via the bucking route. In fact the local team, though lighter, proved the better at pounding through the line. Craig and McFadden starred for the local team. Washington scored a touch down in the first half and another in the second half. McFadden in the first half forced his way through the line for six yards and a touchdown. In the second half Craig made his touch down in much the same way as McFadden secured his in the first.

Another feature of the game were the two gains made by McFadden which intercepted two forward passes of the visitors.

The local team lined up as follows: Gregg, lh; McFadden, fb; Craig, rh; Willis, re; Strevey, rt; Wetzel, rg; Beck, c; Hoppes, lg; Moore, lt; Evan le; McDonald, qb,

All of the members of the local team played a good steady, heady game of foot ball and fairly and squarely out classed the visitors.

Candidates and Issues

In anticipation of next year's general election the people are already being burdened with news reports and editorial Make lowly ships carry low sails; comment as to the efforts of this, that and the other candidate to secure the support of the drys, to so demean himself, meas ure his public utterances and discharge his official duties as When rain comes before the wind, not to give offense to the liberal element and vice versa.

The visit of Governor Willis to Cincinnati this week has soon you'll make the set again. been cause for rumors to spread all over the state like a swarm of seven year locusts that the chief executive is trying You're sure to get a fishing day; to court favor with the powerful liberal interests of Hamilton county and that he is endeavoring to satisfactorily explain to the dry forces his conduct in the last campaign. All of which we must presume is only rumor with no more real basis to sup port it than the imagination of space writers and overly zealous partisan editors.

The present condition is not new and the rumors regarding the intent underlying the visit of Governor Willis to Cin cinnati are not peculiar to him and his candidacy.

Those prospective candidates not already the nucleus of a separate collection of rumors regarding this endeavor to corral both the wet and dry vote are few indeed. The candidates who are pronounced and out spoken dry or liberal next fall will, unless conditions change wonderfully, be as rare as they Friday. have been in the past.

There are indications, however, that the time will soon come when candidates must get on one side or the other. The issue is going to be sharply drawn and every candidate must assume a position and succeed or fail on his choice.

There is no doubt that the cowardice of candidates—the continual dodging of the issue, the twisting and evasion, all with a view to getting support from both of the warring elements has been the direct cause for most of the perpetual hurrah over the wet and dry issue. It is the straddlers and cowards among the candidates that is responsible for keeping the wet and dry issue in politics.

The trouble is that too many candidates, before election, hold out hope to both sides and fulfill, after election, their promises, express or implied, to neither.

If the agitation of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Bryan can force the issue in the two major political parties so that every candidate will be compelled to declare himself they will have rendered a service to their fellow countrymen and removed from political campaigns a bugaboo which makes of many otherwise brave and able men, cowards and weaklings.

Nothing will advance the cause of temperance more than to put an end to this continual playing fast and loose with both sides by candidates and officials.

Wilson Appeals to Opponents

President Wilson, according to seemingly authentic reports, has conferred with a number of the Republican leaders over the administration "preparedness" program which it is the intention to submit to the next session of congress.

It is now certain that the submission of the program, in volving the expenditure of enormous sums for army and navy betterment, will be met with powerful opposition in the ranks of the president's own party.

Enough of opposition has already developed, in advance of the convening of congress, to convince the president and his advisors that the adoption of the plan by a vote of the members of the majority party in congress, is extremely doubtful even if the opposition already announced does not warrant the belief that the plan will be defeated unless support comes from the ranks of the opposition party

The president has shown his broadmindedness in appealing for support to his political opponents and in insisting that the matter of national preparedness in its extent and detail, is not a partisan issue but one upon which officials and legislators may agree or disagree, without regard to political affiliation.

While some of the leaders of the president's own party have been more outspoken in their opposition to the plan than his political opponents have been in expressing approval of it, yet the belief seems justified that, at this time, there will be a sufficient gain from the ranks of the opponent party to offset the opposition in the ranks of the president's own party. IN DEPOSITING YOUR MONEY

It is a little early yet, however, to count the legislative noses in the opposing lines.

There is much yet to be said by the advocates of the plan and much by those who oppose it.

Public sentiment is certain to exert an important influence, as it should, on the members of the next congress.

The leaders of the opposing factions are going to keep getting five per cent interest, rapidly with the approach of Car busy from this time until the next congress takes its final vote and being convertable into ranza troops from the east and inon the proposal and it is not beyond the range of probabilities cash at any time, and being at that party lines will be obliterated when the final vote is no expense or trouble, you are sidio, 200 miles east of Juarez, report taken.

DEAD MAY NOT REACH 100

Many Passengers Lost, Says One Report, as Result of Shots Fired by the Submarine After the Liner Came to a Halt-Another Report States the Attacking Submarine Flew the German Flag.

Washington, Nov. 12. Secretary Lansing refrained from expressing any opinion as to the attitude of the United States with respect to the sinking of the Italian liner Ancons, Official reports describing exactly how the Ancona was destroyed are Ftill unavailable.

News dispatches indicating that the Ancona was given warning, but that many passengers were lost as a result of shots fired by the attacking submarine after the liner came to a halt, were read here with interest. High officials of the American government hold that when heeding a warning a belligerent merchantman is entitled to sufficient time to place noncombatants in a place of safety, and that the fact that a vessel previously attempted to escape does not invalidate that right.

Conflicting reports concerning the colors raised by the submarine which attacked the Ancona attracted much attention. If one report-that the submarine ffew a German flag-is confirmed, officials said this would be considered as an act of war sufficient to serve notice that Italy and Germany were in a state of war. Should it develop that the submarine was manned by a German naval force and

PANIC CAUSED

London, Nov. 12.-Late advices from Naples indicate that the loss of ife on the Italian liner Ancona, torpedoed and sunk off Sardinia by an Austrian submarine Tuesday afternoon, does not exceed 105. The exact number of Americans included in the Ancona's passenger list and the number of those who perished has not yet been established.

A Malta dispatch quotes survivors landed there as stating that the Austrian submarine which overhauled the Ancona after a long stern chase gave the commander a brief respite to remove passengers and crew. It was the panic among the passengers that ensued during this respite that caused the loss of life. Some of the boats, crowded by men, women and children tumbling over one another, were overturned before they could be lowered, throwing the occupants into the sea. The shell fire from the submarine continued during the disembarkation, presumably to hasten it, but instead added to the panic.

The statement that two submarines attacked the Italian liner was made at Cape Bon by one of the Ancona's in Columbus were welcomed by sufofficers, named Salvomini, who asserted that towards noon he sighted two submarines which were able to approach the vessel unobserved owing to the thick fog, the blowing of the liner's siren and the Ancona's reduced speed. Both submarines flew the Austrian flag, he declares. The rearest submarine, according to the officer was about 360 feet long and carried three-inch guns on her bow. The other submarine, with a view to reventing the liner's escape, crossed the Ancona's bow. "The eighth boat hardly had touched the water," says the officer, "when the liner was sunk" and you will save yourself much in- of the passengers and crew who had day,

As soon as the Ancona sighted an approaching submarine toward noon on Tuesday an attempt was made to escape at full speed, according to a We cater especially to regular city dispatch from Tunis. The dispatch was overtaken and stopped and sunk by the submarine "amid the desperate cries of the passengers." This version of the disaster continues: "The lifeboats were next attacked, the submarine like-

Fast Game on Local Gridiron Is Taken By Washington High School Team - Despite Lighter Weight Local Stars Successfully Force Through Lines for Touchdowns.

The Washington High school eleven proved too strong and too resourceful for the London High on the local gridiron Thursday afternoon. In a game replete with brilliant plays the local team was returned the victor by a score of 12 to 0.

Despite the greater aggregate weight in the visiting team the local line up proved sufficient to stop all attempts to buck the Washington High line. Comparatively little gain was made by the visitors via the bucking route. In fact the local team, though lighter, proved the better at pounding through the line. Craig and McFadden starred for the local team. Washington scored a touch down in the first half and another in the gecond half. McFadden in the first half forced his way through the line for six yards and a touchdown. In the second half Craig made his touch down in much the same way as McFadden secured his in the first. Another feature of the game were the two gains made by McFadden which intercepted two forward passes of the visitors. The local team lined up as follows: Gregg, lh; McFadden, fb; Craig, rh;

Willis, re; Strevey, rt; Wetzel, rg; Beck, c; Hoppes, lg; Moore, lt; Evan le; McDonald, qb, All of the members of the local team played a good steady, heady game of foot ball and fairly and squarely out classed the visitors. Yesterday's contest was the first of the season between the two

Candidates and Issues

In anticipation of next year's general election the people are already being burdened with news reports and editorial Make lowly ships carry low sails; comment as to the efforts of this, that and the other candidate to secure the support of the drys, to so demean himself, measure his public utterances and discharge his official duties as not to give offense to the liberal element and vice versa.

The visit of Governor Willis to Cincinnati this week has soon you'll make the set again. been cause for rumors to spread all over the state like a swarm of seven year locusts that the chief executive is trying to court favor with the powerful liberal interests of Hamilton But evening gray and morning red, county and that he is endeavoring to satisfactorily explain to the dry forces his conduct in the last campaign. All of which we must presume is only rumor with no more real basis to support it than the imagination of space writers and overly zealous partisan editors.

The present condition is not new and the rumors regarding the intent underlying the visit of Governor Willis to Cin cinnati are not peculiar to him and his candidacy.

Those prospective candidates not already the nucleus of a separate collection of rumors regarding this endeavor to corral both the wet and dry vote are few indeed. The candidates who are pronounced and out spoken dry or liberal next fall will, unless conditions change wonderfully, be as rare as they Friday. have been in the past.

There are indications, however, that the time will soon come when candidates must get on one side or the other. The issue is going to be sharply drawn and every candidate must assume a position and succeed or fail on his choice.

There is no doubt that the cowardice of candidates—the continual dodging of the issue, the twisting and evasion, all with a view to getting support from both of the warring elements has been the direct cause for most of the perpetual hurrah over the wet and dry issue. It is the straddlers and cowards among the candidates that is responsible for keeping the wet and dry issue in politics.

The trouble is that too many candidates, before election, hold out hope to both sides and fulfill, after election, their promises, express or implied, to neither.

If the agitation of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Bryan can force the issue in the two major political parties so that every candidate will be compelled to declare himself they will have rendered a service to their fellow countrymen and removed from political campaigns a bugaboo which makes of many otherwise brave and able men, cowards and weaklings.

Nothing will advance the cause of temperance more than to put an end to this continual playing fast and loose with both sides by candidates and officials.

Wilson Appeals to Opponents

President Wilson, according to seemingly authentic reports, has conferred with a number of the Republican leaders over the administration "preparedness" program which it is the intention to submit to the next session of congress.

It is now certain that the submission of the program, involving the expenditure of enormous sums for army and navy betterment, will be met with powerful opposition in the ranks of the president's own party.

Enough of opposition has already developed, in advance of the convening of congress, to convince the president and his advisors that the adoption of the plan by a vote of the members of the majority party in congress, is extremely doubtful even if the opposition already announced does not warrant the belief that the plan will be defeated unless support comes from the ranks of the opposition party

The president has shown his broadmindedness in appealing for support to his political opponents and in insisting that the matter of national preparedness in its extent and detail, is not a partisan issue but one upon which officials and legislators may agree or disagree, without regard to political

While some of the leaders of the president's own party have been more outspoken in their opposition to the plan than his political opponents have been in expressing approval of it, yet the belief seems justified that, at this time, there will be a sufficient gain from the ranks of the opponent party to offset the opposition in the ranks of the president's own party. IN DEPOSITING YOUR MONEY

It is a little early yet, however, to count the legislative noses in the opposing lines.

There is much yet to be said by the advocates of the plan and much by those who oppose it.

Public sentiment is certain to exert an important influence, as it should, on the members of the next congress.

The leaders of the opposing factions are going to keep getting five per cent interest, rapidly with the approach of Carbusy from this time until the next congress takes its final vote and being convertable into ranza troops from the east and inon the proposal and it is not beyond the range of probabilities cash at any time, and being at ternal discord in the Villa garrison. that party lines will be obliterated when the final vote is no expense or trouble, you are sidio, 200 miles east of Juarez, report taken.

No Action Taken In the Case with the German foreign office of the Liner Arcona.

DEAD MAY NOT REACH 100

Many Passengers Lost, Says One Report, as Result of Shots Fired by the Submarine After the Liner Came to a Halt-Another Report States the Attacking Submarine Flew the German Flag.

Washington, Nov. 12. Secretary Lansing refrained from expressing any opinion as to the attitude of the United States with respect to the sinking of the Italian liner Ancons. Official reports describing exactly how the Ancona was destroyed are *till unavailable.

News dispatches indicating that the Ancona was given warning, but that many passengers were lost as a result of shots fired by the attacking submarine after the liner came to a halt, were read here with interest. High officials of the American government hold that when heeding a warning a belligerent merchantman is entitled to sufficient time to place noncombatants in a place of safety, and that the fact that a vessel previously attempted to escape does not invalidate that right.

Conflicting reports concerning the colors raised by the submarine which attacked the Ancona attracted much attention. If one report-that the submarine ffew a German flag-is confirmed, officials said this would be considered as an act of war sufficient to serve notice that Italy and Gerniany were in a state of war. Should it develop that the submarine was manned by a German naval force and from Naples indicate that the loss of life on the Italian liner Ancona, torpedoed and sunk off Sardinia by an Austrian submarine Tuesday afternoon, does not exceed 105. The exact number of Americans included in the Ancona's passenger list and the number of those who perished has not vet been established.

A Malta dispatch quotes survivors landed there as stating that the Austrian submarine which overhauled the Ancona after a long stern chase gave the commander a brief respite to remove passengers and crew. It was the panic among the passengers that ensued during this respite that caused the loss of life. Some of the boats, crowded by men, women and children tumbling over one another, were overturned before they could be lowered, throwing the occupants into the sea. The shell fire from the submarine continued during the disembarkation, presumably to hasten it, but instead added to the panic.

The statement that two submarines attacked the Italian liner was made at Cape Bon by one of the Ancona's officers, named Salvomini, who asserted that towards noon he sighted two submarines which were able to approach the vessel unobserved owing to the thick fog, the blowing of the liner's siren and the Ancona's reduced speed. Both submarines flew the Austrian flag, he declares. The rearest submarine, according to the officer was about 360 feet long and carried three-inch guns on her bow. The other submarine, with a view to preventing the liner's escape, crossed the Ancona's bow. "The eighth boat hardly had touched the water," says the officer, "when the liner was sunk" by the head, engulfing the remainder of the passengers and crew who had day.

As soon as the Ancona sighted an escape at full speed, according to a stopped and sunk by the submarine amid the desperate cries of the passengers." This version of the disas-The linen you wear costs too ter continues: "The lifeboats were next attacked, the submarine like-

Pay attention to this-

DAY attention to your clothes, Sir - see that they're not "Tom, Dick and Harry" styles - that the woolens haven't been made to sell in car load lots, that a battery of sewing machines hasn't tried unsuccessfully to imitate the craft of the journey-man tailor.

Pay attention to those things — they're important. See that your clothes are custom tailored—to fit you, to please you, to lift you out of the "every day" class.
